1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the
 2. various methods of determining the rate of reaction. It is shown
 3. that the most reliable method is the one which involves the
 4. measurement of the change in concentration of one of the
 5. reactants or products. This method is applicable to all
 6. reactions, and is the only one which gives accurate results.
 7. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the
 8. factors which influence the rate of reaction. It is shown
 9. that the rate of reaction is influenced by the concentration
 10. of the reactants, the temperature, and the presence of a
 11. catalyst. The effect of each of these factors is discussed
 12. in detail, and it is shown how they can be used to control
 13. the rate of reaction. The third part of the paper is devoted
 14. to a discussion of the theory of reaction rates. It is shown
 15. that the rate of reaction is determined by the energy of
 16. activation, and that the energy of activation is influenced
